FFG Expedition Zukunft - New FFG funding scheme for disruptive and radicale innovations

FFG published the first call for a completely novel funding scheme. The link can be found here:

<https://www.ffg.at/programm/expedition-zukunft>

The innovation aims to disrupt markets, for example by creating new markets and/or driving out market participants.

The innovation aims to solve complex social, environmental or economic problems that are transregional and serious and affect many people.

The innovation aims at a large and radical technological leap and involves very high technological challenges.

Innovative projects are supported that bring about major changes in markets, technologies or societies and contribute to a positive future worth living in. Disruptive and radical innovations can be assigned to one of the following dimensions:

- The innovation aims to disrupt markets, for example by creating new markets and/or driving out market participants.
- The innovation aims to solve complex social, environmental or economic problems that are transregional and serious and affect many people.
- The innovation aims at a large and radical technological leap and involves very high technological challenges.

One part of the programme specifically addresses research organizations:
